the Copyright Act, 1957, of different classes of works as defined under Section 13 of the Act. The particulars of the work eligible for registration are entered in the Register of Copyrights and relevant extracts of the same are sent to the applicant. The Copyright Office has entered particulars of a literary work titled "Y2K (Sankranti)" on the basis of an application under registration No. L-18402/99 dated 24.06.1999 in the name of Shri Shyam Singh Thakur of Bhopal and a copy of the entry in the Register has been furnished to the applicant. The idea contained in the literary work is not protected under the Copyright Act. It is the expression of an idea, which is protected under Copyright, and not the idea per se. In Fact, the acquisition of copyright by the creator of a work is automatic and simultaneous with the creation of the work and it does not need any legal formality of registration etc. The registration of copyright does not grant the copyright owner any rights whatsoever other than what is already conferred under the Copyright Act. The Copyright Office is only a registry and the question of setting up any authority base on registration of the said work does not arise.
